FRENCH MILITARY AVIATION IN

Mr. T.-F. Farman, the father of Henry ind Myseloo Farman, the pioneer fliers and murophine constructors, contributes. in important article to the January -Humber of "Blackwood's Magazine" or French Military Aviation in 1913. It colitains information that provides a triking contrast with the scale on which we pursue the new science in this counry, hence it should be read by all thinkring: Britishers in the light of an object esson. It may be taken for granted the French Army has at the present moment flood of close on 500 serial craft Those avious," ways Mr. Farman, who throughout uses that word to indicate heroplanes, " are distributed Emong the twenty or more military aviation centre reduid in various parts of the country and more especially round Paris and Iri he East and North of France. Each or hose contres naturally possesses a depor f gasolene (petrol store) and oil, and workshop for the repair of avious. . The Beers and men composing the French eviation corps are recruited from all the ther branches of the Service, and contimue to wear the uniform of the respective regiments from which they were drawn, and to which they may return: But while serving in the aviation corps they wear a distinctive bedge, and enjoy special advantage. For instance, they are paid on the same scale as officers and men engaged in active service in the field. In the case of a fatal accident the widow receives the same pension as the widow of a man killed in buttle, and the time spent in the aviation corps counts for promotion the same as time spent in campaigning. . . . At the end of 1912, paired on the spot within a delay varying some 200 aviators, who, with few exceptions, belong to the active army, had gained the Superior Military Aviation Certificate. The others are either professional aviators or men belonging to the eroplane accidents in France, entailing Reserves or the Territorial Forces. At livrious injury or death to pilots and pasthe end of November the French Aero Tub had issued 1,175 Aviation Pilot's than in 1911. . . . The statistics of the Certificates. ANGLO-AMERICAN PEACE

Centen y In 1914. TITE'S APPEAL

The formal inauguration of the move ment for the celebration by Great Britain of the hundredth anniversary of 'peace among English-speaking peoples took place recently at the Mansion House, when Earl Grey, president of the British Committee, explained the objects of the celebration, and, so far as they are completed, the proposals of the British Committee. The fact that at Christmas, 1914, one hundred years will have passed since the signing of the Treaty of Ghent which concluded the last armed conflict between the British and American peoples, has prompted the leading men on both sides of the Atlantic to observe the occasion fittingly as a landmark in the progress of civilisation. Accordingly in the United States, more than two years ago, an extremely representative National Committee was formed, comprising such men as Mr Rocevelt, Mr Carnegie. Senator Root, Mr J. H. Choate, and Mr W. J. Bryan. This was followed at an early date by the formation of the British Committee for the celebration, headed by Erl Grey (ex-Governor-General of Canada), the Earl of Plymouth, Lord Shaw of Dunfarmline, and many other prominent representatives of both sides of British politics. distinguished body of vice-presidents has meanwhile been formed, which now includes the Premire and Foreign Secretary and almost all the mem-· Under the Personal Supervision of the bers of the present Cabinat, as well as nearly all the members of the previous Conservative Administration, including the Marquess of Lansdowne, Mr Balfour, and Mr Austin Chamberlain, besides the present Leader of the Opposition and the more prominent members of the Unionist party. Leading financiers, business men. scientists, literary men, artists, musicians, heads of universities, and other representative gentlemen are also takin up the movement with remarkable enthus sm.

What form the celebration will take must depend upon general developments, but there is every reason to believe that it will be undertaken upon a scale compatible with the immense significance of the event. As a seguel to the establishment of the British Committee, a Canadian Committee has been formed during the last few months, which is regarded as the most in fluential public committee hitherto formed in the Dominion.

THE TREATY OF 1814.

In addition to the celebrations which are expected to take place coincidently in the United Kingdom and America, there will also, it is expected, be an important celebration in Ghent, where the treaty was signed in 1814, the Burgomaster of Gheut having intimated that his municipality will co-operate cordi lly with the British and American committees in the celebration. The treaty was actually signed in the old Carthusian Convent at Ghent, in which the British plenipotentiaries were lodged. The building will be restored as far as possible to it original condition in 1814, while at the same time the banquet room in the Hotel de Ville will be similarly restored, and probably the banquet, in 1914 will be held there on similar lines to those of the banque held at the conclusion of the treaty a 135 hundred years ago.

In a letter Earl Grey has says :-

""The movement for the celebration has been taken up with the utmost heartiness in the United States and Canada, as well as in Great Britain, and national committees of exceptional authority have been constituted and are now-busily engaged in elaborating their programmes: Of the American National Committee it is sufficient to say that it contains the foremost names in American public life. The same is true of the Canadian Committee, of which Sir Edmund Walker is chairman, New Insurance Paid for ..... £ 25,687,500 and which has the full sympathy and support of the Premier, Mr Borden, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and their leading followers. Our own British Committee is very widely representative, and is honoured by the support, in the capacity of vice-presidents, of the Premier, the Foreigh Secretary, the Marquess of Lansdowns, Mr Bonar Law, Mr . J. Balfour, and most of the members of the present and preceding. Administrati ns. The preliminary proposals 4.48 of the British programme for the celebra-Wednesday afternoon at the Mansion House. It remains for me now to hospeak the interest and support of the Press and the public in the movement, to the end that we may achieve a commemoration worthy of this great occasion."

Time was when disease was thought to be due to the direct influence of evil spirits, and exorcism and magic were invoked to cast it out.

In fact, so pronounced was this uppleasing trait in Mr. Bonar Law some little time ago that Mr. Asquith referred to it as being "The new style!"

In his latest little lapse—or is it a settled pose or fixed habit?-Mr. Bonar has stigmatised the Government as being composed of "gamblers and adventurers." . "Gamblers and adventurers!" What does he mean? He surely cannot mean what "Gamblers and adventurers!" What member of the present Government or of any other British Government of, say, the past hundred years or even further back, ever "gambled." by virtue of his position in the uffairs of the State? To refer to such men as "adventurers" is beneath one's contempt. Only to one statesman has this term been seriously applied, and perhaps, at the time, not inapproprintely. And who was that statesman? He was not a member of the present Government, but he was the most brilliant member of the Party. whom Mr. Bonar Law now has the 6 p.m .- Matinee of Hughes Musical honour to lead. excitement and loss of self-control, for the presence of the one and the absence of the other invariably means the introduction of all sorts of absurd ties, especially in a public speech.

Unfortunately, Mr. Bonar Law not the only culprit in this respectbut we really believe he is the worst Meeting in Jockey Club room, Hongof the few there are. Occasionally, Mr Lloyd George, as at Limehouse, expresses himself in a manner that must raise the hopes of the habitues of Billingsgate that their rhetorical flourishes are not likely to be ignored "What Every Woman Knows." in "high places," Mr Lansbury, too, -quite a powerful (at least physically) ex-member of the Labour Party-distinguished himself in this respect in the House of Commons, not only by using very unparliamentary language but by insulting the Prime Minister in a most offensive manner. Then there is the redoubtable_Sir E. Carson and the pocket-edition of Disraeli Mr. F. E. Smith. They are also bad offenders, particularly when referring to the Secretary of the Board.

MANY people interested in politics Indeed, it is a deplorable abuse of -and possibly quite a few not inone's privilege as a member of Parliament, a very clumsy, occasionally grossly vulgar, way of emphasising one's barrenness of expression and vacuity of mind; and it certainly does not tend to cause the general public to increase its respect either for Parliament or Members of Parliament.

Quite a number of dead bodies of children have been found abandoned in Hongkong in the last two days. The body of a child aged twelve has been found at the godown wharf, Kowloon. Death had been due to drowning and the body was placed on shore. child's hody was discovered on the forethore in the Tsam Tsui Po district, and another was found in an earth pit off Yaumati Road. Naturally, as to-day is the date for the closing of the entries for the forthcoming Race Meeting there was a large attendance at the rails this morning. The first pony that came under notice: was Sandringham, a Shanghai cruck. His time was nothing remarkable, but his last quarter in 32.1 was good. 'Dur's bar Chief went a slow mile, held all the way. but finished easily in 32.2. Clerie's performance was one of the best of the old ponies, one mile and a quarter in 2.57.2, fluishing strong. The Rice Bird took 2.58:1 over the same distance hu rathled off the last quarter in 31 dead. Royal Rose did a useful 1.46 over threequarters, going strong from stars in His stable companion -White Hawthorn covered the same distance but appeared to be going short. Daisy

The Governor's gray sub, heat his bay ggiffin over a mile and a half; but the finish was very poor.

The maximun monthly enrolment was 608, the average daily attendance, for the 235 days on which classes were held, was 480. With the exception of the oceasions I have just mentioned, the attendance has been marked by great regularity, and 96 pupils made the maximum number of attendances. Vacancies which have occurred in the stuff have been filled by the appointment, among others, of Messes, N. McIntyre, J. Smith, H. Maxwell, M.A. and J. Jones, B.Se., all keen and qualified teachers. Hitherto the lack of accommodation and apparatus has prevented the development of our teaching on the scientific side, but we hope to extend in this direction on the completion of the laboratories now being fitted up. The staff, as augmented, now consists of eight English musters, eight local teachers, and four vernacular teachers.

For purposes of Government grant-inuid, the school year now terminates on 30th June, instead of 31st December. To effect this change it was necessary to hold a half-yearly inspection. The library continues to be a source of piensore and instruction. Its usefulness could, however, be largely extended by the addition of books more suited to the mental capacity of the younger pupils. With increased accommodation it hoped to institute a reading room, in which pupils may have the privilege of seeing some of the brightest and best
